CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES

WHEN Cortright Metal Shingles were first introduced (24 years ago) you had some excuse for being sceptical! But now—
If you are sceptical it can only be because you do not know the facts in the case.
They are used today from the Atlantic to the Pacific for all kinds of buildings, under all conditions.
They are fireproof, stormproof; never leak and last as long as the building itself without needing repairs.

A QUAIN OLD TAVERN

The Old Cheshire Cheese, in the Heart of London.

SERVES A FAMOUS PUDDING.

A Noble Pastry It Is, and It Was Sampled by Such Men as Gladstone, Dickens, Thackeray, Tennyson, Trollope and Whistler.

Nearly all Americans when they go to London make it a point to visit that quaint old tavern in the heart of the newspaper and printing business, the Old Cheshire Cheese, to partake of its famous pudding.

It is the Londoner's delight when he gets back to Fleet street to make a rush for the pudding, and it is almost the last thing he eats before leaving it. Travelers in the Sahara have seen mirages of that pudding, and during the Boer war the men shut up in Ladysmith and Mafeking dreamed of it at regular intervals.

Precisely at 1 o'clock p. m. Tom conveys the pudding from the first to the main floor. It is a big pudding, and the price of it is just 2 shillings—that is to say, a feed of it is 2 shillings, as much as you please, as many shares as you ask for, cut and come again, all for 48 cents of American coin. Cheap, aye, and, oh, how good it is! It is worth crossing the Atlantic to get a sniff of it, and the aroma lingers in the memory for many a day.

Big? The dimensions are Faustian. It is a round earthen vessel something more than two dozen inches deep, with a diameter of about eighteen inches. A noble pastry, my masters!

When it is placed upon the service table an elliptical white crust meets the hungry gaze. Tom and his myrmidons take their places in front facing the host, who, knife and spoon in hand, poses with gentle dignity and benignant mien. It is a moment of solemn thought when every man hopes that his portion will be larger than his friend's and that he will be blessed with an abundance of gravy. But they ought from years of acquaintance with the host to understand that his hand is as steady as his judgment is impartial.

No more and nothing better for one than for another. He waves his weapons, and the first onslaught is made. The room is full of a delicious steam bearing with it the concentrated essences of ambrosial substances. The guests sniff it up and murmur choice blessings on the cook, the original inventor, the house and the host. It is a time when men feel good, one toward the other.

One smell of that pudding makes the whole world kin. This famous pudding, which has tickled the palates of thousands, is thus compounded:

A crust of flour, water and suet.
Beefsteak.
Sheep's kidneys.
Larks.
Mushrooms (freshly gathered).
Oysters.
Stock.
Pepper and salt.

But it is the boiling that does it. For at least twelve hours this heaven sent pudding is kept slowly simmering in an immense copper specially constructed for the purpose. It must not boil quickly, but the same temperature be kept up the whole period. The steak assumes a juicy tenderness; the larks—not sparrows, as some malignant spirit has suggested, although sparrow pudding is not to be despised—are seethed to the bone, and you can chew up each little songster without an effort; the kidneys are soft and mushy and offer no resistance to the digestive organs, and the oysters, despite their lengthened cooking, are not leathery. The amalgamation and assimilation of the variety of constituents are perfect; the result is bliss.

There is a story told of one eminent litterateur who had seven helpings of the pudding and still yearned for more, and there is another remarkable narrative of four men who ordered a pudding of the regulation size and finished it among them.

J. Pierpont Morgan praised the pudding, and Theodore Roosevelt was delighted with it. Lord Beaconsfield bestowed his approbation thereon, and Gladstone thought it far superior to his famous "three courses." Dickens, Thackeray, Meredith, Swinburne, Tennyson, Trollope, Whistler, Leighton, Sala, Phil May—all sorts of the best of men of their day have fed upon the pudding, and it no doubt helped to inspire their work.

Apparently any cook can fashion it, mix it, fix it, boil it. Let any cook try it. Lots of cooks have tried it, but the results have not been satisfactory. There was a man who once ran the Old Cheshire Cheese, and in his day the pudding first achieved its great fame. When he sold the old hostelry and took a house in the financial district he announced that the same pudding—the same in every respect—would be served every Saturday.

Many of the Cheese's old patrons came around to celebrate. There was the size, but the aroma was wanting; there were the identical materials, but the flavor was not in them. It was not the same, not a bit of it. There was something missing. It may have been the shades of the departed great ones of a bygone time. And so it is that today the famous dish of the Old Cheshire Cheese tastes as of old, and its devotees cannot be seduced by any designing invitation based upon "just as good" simply because there is nothing just as good.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Thoughts are mightier than the strength of hand.—Sophocles.

Gold Heated Water.
Over 4,000 years ago an elaborate system of filtration was established by the Egyptians to purify the waters of the Nile. In both Rome and Athens hot water was drunk in preference to cold by the small minority who used water for drinking purposes. Chamberlain, writing in 1500, notes that the habit of drinking hot water was spreading among all classes in France. "Some warm it by holding it over the fire. Others dip burning bread into it. Rich people plunge a bar of hot gold into their water before drinking it, and the less wealthy a bar of hot iron, while the very poor are content to warm their drink with a live coal."

Got His Number.
Uncle Zeph had had some trouble getting about on the cars and complained of the employees. "When a conductor is uncivil to you take his number," said his nephew.

Two days later uncle came in somewhat battered, but looking triumphant. "I got the number," he said, with a satisfied air, "but I had to grab the bull cap too."—Buffalo Express.

A Remarkable Remedy

"I think 'Four Barks' is a splendid remedy for cure of gripple as four doses of it gave my daughter who was suffering from this trouble complete relief."

J. M. DERMID.

"It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of 'Four Barks.' It cured me of a severe case of gripple in less than 24 hours."

W. H. PHILLIPS.

"Four Barks" is a fine blood tonic. Not long since I got two fingers on my left hand badly mashed in corn crusher. Inflammation set in and I tried every thing I could think of to check it but without avail. I was advised to take "Four Barks" for my blood. I did so and in a few days my fingers began to heal and in one week time they were well and I could use my hands as well as ever.

J. B. DILL.

"I have great confidence in 'Four Barks.' About a month ago I woke up one morning with cold in head, with copious discharge from nose. 'Four Barks' gave me complete relief in a few hours. It is a great appetizer and is without a doubt one of the finest medicines I ever took."

L. R. SCOTT.

"I think 'Four Barks' is a very fine tonic. It has done me more good than any other tonic I ever took and I cheerfully recommend it to anyone who may be ailing as I think it must be good for most troubles."

F. A. BLY.

P. S. It has cured me of a long standing case of eczema.

"I think 'Four Barks' is a very fine tonic. My wife is taking it and she thinks very favorably of it. A few mornings ago I woke up with every symptom of my old enemy the gripple and one dose of it made me feel alright in a few hours—and I have continued to feel so ever since."

J. A. FRAZIER.

"I think 'Four Barks' is a fine all-round tonic. One bottle relieved me of a kidney trouble of three years standing. It is certainly a great appetizer for I have not been able to get enough to eat since I commenced to take it."

A. R. MAXWELL.

"I consider 'Four Barks' a very fine remedy. It cured me of a severe case of gripple in a remarkably short time. My wife has a very high opinion of it also as she has taken it with beneficial results."

What A Buncombe Man Thinks Of "4-Barks"

Mr. D. R. Millard Asheville, N. C.

Dear Sir:

In response to your inquiry as to what I think of "4 Barks," want to say for over ten years I have been troubled with acute indigestion, constipation and other stomach disabilities and have tried time and time again many remedies, but until I had the good fortune to run into "4 Barks," I was still unbefitted.

Have used only one bottle of "4 Barks" and am wonderfully improved. Had a recent attack of the measles and the easy time I experienced I attribute to my good condition caused by the use of "4 Barks." I thank you for telling me about this wonderful remedy and assure you too much can't be said in its favor.

Yours very truly,
E. W. SWANN,
